

John Miller

I strongly support Ecology's advancing rule making on protection of "Type III" streams. The recent rains are putting an end to the declared drought in Western Washington counties; but, that may become the seasonal pattern. Proliferating wildfires, increasing in-stream temperatures in late summer, and the drought should all tell us that the time to provide protection for the natural environment is NOW. Thank you.