

Lyle Anderson

It appears that all of the organizations that nominated these areas for Outstanding Resource Waters are known for their desire to retain what pristine environments that are left, whereas most comments against the nominations are motivated by financial interests, namely continued resource extraction, thus contributing to environmental degradation of these areas. Future generations (human and otherwise) deserve their preservation.