

Assoc. of Consulting Foresters Anonymous

The current rules regarding waters of Washington are adequate for protecting our waters. Before any designation of Type III waters a full accounting of impacts to forest management activities must be made. Just be transparent with all issues. Large and small landowners don't need more regulations that affect water quality.