

Lena Glaskova

Microplastics are everywhere, and we are slowly learning about their effects on the environment and our own health. Intentional addition of microplastics to cosmetic products should be restricted or banned completely before their accumulation becomes a global issue.