I am not sure how improving water quality in Central Kingsgate has anything to do with a potential redevelopment plan in the Kingsgate shopping area. I would believe that the water in this area is already clean, if I am not correct? Is this a sneaky way to develop this area with container condos, adding multi-units and getting rid of single family homes and displacing the small businesses that have already been there for decades. "Redevelopment of a vibrant commercial district". If it is already vibrant then why do we need to redevelop it. Please explain in detail what you mean. Thank you.
