

Ed Griffenberg

Washington has a shortage of certified operators. Finding ways to keep operators engaged with the profession after retirement seems like a good idea to me. Having a reduced fee for retired wastewater operators should be reviewed and implemented. The $200 fee is a bit high for most retired folks to keep their license current. This cost is added to any fees required to obtain the necessary CEUs per year. Please look into this option in the future.