

Marc Christensen

First off, you need to expand the public comment period and be much more open and transparent with the public. You spent a couple years in discussion with special interest groups. You should give the people you represent equal access.

Secondly, you must positively prove the source of non point polution and its impact on water quality. These rules can and will be used by over zealous bureaucrats to abuse property rights of regular Washingtonians.