

Sheela Word

Buffer zones around streams keep them clean and cool, which is better for fish. They also foster growth of trees and shrubs, which is better for creatures that live near the streams. I support the expansion of buffers from 50 feet to 75 feet on site-specific riparian lands.