

Jonathan Larson

Please add a 75ft buffer to all streams. We need to improve water quality and keep watershed areas as protected as possible as the climate deteriorates and becomes hotter and drier.

Larger stands of forests can help protect creeks and understory from harsh sunlight, hotter temperatures and drier conditions. It also serves as a habitat for migratory animals and bugs, which are a key part of the food chain to avoid ecosystem collapse, which could cost WA staggering amounts of money.