1 We should be lessening, not adding to our pollution load.

2 Let China make their own methanol.

3 We should be looking at a reduction in plastics production, not an increase...especially given that we can't even effectively recycle what already exists.

4 Surely there is some industry we could foster in the same location for economic gain which would support a more eco-intelligent process/ product. If Washington does not lead this country towards that goal, then who will?
