

Wendy Emerson

When climate chaos is all around us and literally thick in the air in the form of smoke from wildfires worsened by global heating, it is amazing that this project has not been summarily canceled. What more evidence do people need to see the insanity of promoting projects such as this--that will continue to belch carbon pollution for 40 years--in a time when we should be phasing out existing plants instead of endeavoring to build new ones.