

Dennis Colombo

When attempting to predict future global GHG emissions how about factoring in the displacement of some fossil fuel energy sources with clean energy sources such as solar and wind? I think that is a more likely scenario than the chances that China will replace coal with Kalama methanol and would probably result in Kalama adding a much greater share of GHG and other pollutants to the atmosphere. Therefore, I urge that the Dept. of Ecology deny this permit.