Dear WA Department of Ecology,

As a person of faith, I believe we are called to care for both the well-being of communities and the environment.

As I am trapped inside by smoke, skies darkened by unprecedented fires, and record-breaking temperatures in our Western states, it's time to step up our efforts against climate change and the deleterious impacts of fossil fuels. We must not only turn back current pollution caused by fossil fuel industries, we must not move forward with new initiatives. Inherent in this moral imperative is investing in a livable future that is safe for all to thrive.

Building the world's largest fracked gas-to-methanol plant in Washington does not align with my personal values of stewardship and justice, nor does it support our state's commitment to reducing climate pollution. Please reject Northwest Innovation Work's proposed methanol refinery in Kalama and deny its Shorelines Permit.

The second Supplemental Environmental Impact Statement for the Kalama methanol refinery clearly shows that this project is dirty, dangerous, and unwise. If built, our state will be locked into decades of additional climate pollution, even though we know it is past time to pursue a truly low-carbon future. Speculating that this project may displace other fossil fuels is not adequate justification for the known pollution that will harm our communities and climate.

Northwest Innovation Works has demonstrated that they are deceptive and will seek profit over people's wellbeing. They cannot be trusted to mitigate the impacts of this fracked gas refinery. The fact that the project has needed three reviews, with outspoken community opposition during each, shows that there is something wrong with it at its core. As Governor Inslee stated, we cannot support such fracked gas projects in good conscience.

You have a moral responsibility to protect public health and reduce our region's climate pollution. Please do what is right and deny this project. Thank you.

Sincerely,
Elise DeGooyer
