

Debbie Tomasovic

Clean energy sources are part of our solution to climate change. Ecology fails to consider whether cleaner energy technologies may dramatically displace the need to use methanol for transportation fuels. Conversely, Ecology's analysis fails to consider how dumping high-polluting methanol into the market could negatively impact a transition to cleaner transportation alternatives and vehicle electrification.