Kalama is a small community. A blip on the radar when compared with other population dense areas. We are only three exits off the i5. A McMinnis recently installed along our gorgeous river front walkway has turned us into a desired 'let's get out of the city' destination. We have a small, river front amphetheater for summer concerts in the park. We have families with 5 generations of residents. The proposed Methanol plant will change everything about our community for the worse and it's not even for our benefit or for the benefit of America. I drive an electric vehicle and care about Global warming and our planet. The last thing I need in my backyard is something to make more plastic. Please consider the residents and future generations of this little town and decide against the permit for this plant.
