

Laura Johanson

No, no, a thousand times no. Backward thinking, major environmental and social affects at the fracking source, more ghg, more disproportionate affects on low-income people here, more plastic and more ghg at its destination. This is not in line with Washington values and exactly the wrong thing to be doing anywhere in the world, let alone here.