

Guila Muir

This project is one of the worst ideas around right now. Totally for profit for a few, the proposed Kalama facility would have a devastating impact on the climate. It would emit more than a million tons per year of climate pollution as part of the manufacturing process alone. Shipping the methanol to Asia would generate hundreds of thousands of additional tons per year of climate pollution. Additionally the methane emitted by fracking and pipeline transport to supply the facility would make the greenhouse gas impacts skyrocket even higher.

Please do the right thing and close the idea of this project down right now.
