

Tracy Ceravalo

A new fossil fuel facility will help the climates. Seeing this will help the claimant is like saying-- the grave is the one we are digging for ourselves. To put this in perspective the head of research, Exxon, that few people felt the world has entered into a transition away from dependence upon fossil fuels and towards a certain mix of renewable resources that will not pose greenhouse gas accumulation. The only question he said was how fast that would happen. Can you imagine them knowing that we are debating here per meeting in new fossil fuel facility 38 years later. And saying that we are hypocritical for wanting to deny the permit because we use plastic is ridiculous. If Northwest innovation Works was truly innovative, the focus on developing new ways to create plastics with suitable resources and without using a new fossil fuels. I ask that you deny permits for this project once and for all, thank you.