Deluded actions for self-interest of a few greedy investors can not prevail against common sense and the actual self interest of all of life on Earth. We, the people, the animals , the trees, all that has evolved in nature, have the moral high ground against frackers, however much stolen money they parlay as noble "business." Nobility is in raising the prosperity of creatures far into the future, not foreclosing that future. A methanol refinery fed by fracking, ruins embodied nature, forever. Fracking is pure evil and is not wanted. Producing artificial demand for fracking, is more evil than the fracking.
