RE: Public Comments on the Proposed Goldendale Energy Storage Project, State Environmental Policy Act Draft Environmental Impact Statement, Publication No. 22-06-006

Dear Regional Director Park,

Columbia Riverkeeper (Riverkeeper) is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization with a mission to protect and restore the Columbia River, from its headwaters to the Pacific Ocean. Riverkeeper plays an active role in educating the public about proposed developments along the Columbia River that may threaten life connected to and dependent on the River. Rye Development (Rye), dba Free Flow Power 101, LLC, proposes the Northwest's largest pumped storage hydroelectric project along the Columbia River in Klickitat County, Washington, near the John Day Dam. The Goldendale Energy Storage Hydroelectric Project (Project) threatens irreplaceable tribal cultural and religious resources, water quality, fish, and wildlife. On behalf of our 16,000 members in Oregon and Washington, Columbia Riverkeeper transmits the collected, attached 856 comments gathered through our website and virtual outreach.

The comment letter signed by the attached list of people states:

Dear Washington Department of Ecology,

I oppose Rye Development's proposed Goldendale Energy Storage Hydroelectric Development (Development) because of the detrimental, unavoidable impacts that it will have on tribal cultural-religious resources, as explicitly expressed by the Confederated Tribes and Bands of the Yakama Nation (Yakama Nation) since 2017. Alleged "green energy" cannot be built at the expense of Tribal Nations, who are already on the front lines of climate change and extractive industrialization and practices.

Rye Development's application should be denied full stop. To allow the application to proceed with Environmental review ignores the intense opposition to building this Development in this location. However, if Ecology proceeds with a Final EIS, it must include the following:

- Consideration of an appropriate range of alternatives, not just the proposed Project and a "no action alternative."
- Changing the "Aesthetics/Visual Quality" impacts to significant adverse impacts because of the impacts to Tribes.
- An analysis of the cleanup integration and oversight planned for the former Aluminum Smelter site.
- An analysis on the potential impacts to groundwater from excavation on the former Aluminum smelter site if construction moves forward.
- An acknowledgement that there are significant adverse environmental justice concerns with this development, including a disproportionate impact on tribal people.

The Draft EIS fails to integrate the Development's destruction of irreplaceable tribal culture and religious resources, along with the intense disruption that this Development would cause to current tribal cultural practices, such as food and medicine gathering, into the full environmental analysis. The Final EIS must integrate these concerns throughout the full analysis and not just the "Cultural and Tribal Resources" sections.

The signers in the attachment submit the above comment for your consideration. Many added their own personalized comments, which are included in a table to ease your review. Please consider these as individual comments.

Sincerely,

| 105 | Jeanette | Burkhardt | 98672-0628 | This pumped storage project is a flagrant example of how colonization of tribal lands perpetuates those injustices by not involving the affected Tribes in the decisionmaking. Federal and state agencies have tribal trust responsibilities that cannot be swept under the rug to consider significant adverse impacts to tribally important resources through proper consultation with those tribes. This process needs to be scrapped and started over, and done right. Or not done at all in this place. |

In addition to very negative cultural and environmental impacts, the operational energy requirements for this project do not merit approval. Hydro pumping and subsequent release both operate at only about 50% efficiency or less. That is, moving water around to generate electricity takes as much or more energy than it produces. Alternate sources including solar, wind and conservation are much better solutions. Thank you for the opportunity to comment. |

More land development? while endangering already endangered fish? while destroying indigenous people's treaty rights? while harming birds who depend on the river for food sources. I also understand that this facility is to be managed by an overseas corporation with no ties to our river, our land and our indigenous peoples. For all these reasons I object to this harmful project. When will men learn that leaving nature alone is the best way to heal and allow humans to survive as a species? Enough of the exploitation of every natural resource. |

To drill a hole through this mountain and create 2 reservoirs is a total desecration to their sacred site and the mountain itself. From the top of the ridge all the way to the toe of the ridge where it meets the Columbia River is a sacred site and where the Yakama's continue to gather their first foods ranging from salmon, roots, and other medicines. Green Energy does not have to come at the burden of the tribe and the environment. The lower reservoir is in the vicinity of a Toxic Waste site that has not been cleaned up; however, they are proceeding and making empty promises. |

For tens of thousands of years it has sustained human communities producing rich cultural and spiritual heritages. These First Peoples have lived in harmony with this ecosystem knowing it to be a spiritually alive, holy gift held in trust. Proposing short-term profit projects dressed as 'green', such as the Goldendale Energy Storage Project is disturbing. I fully support the Yakama Nation's concern and their recommendations. I feel that entire project will continue a dangerous decline in an already fragile and compromised Ecosystem. Not only will the hydro cause a significant rise in surrounding water temperature, the disturbed close proximity to the two 60acre smelter holding ponds could cause irreparable damage should those ponds suffer a breach. Despite the positive aspects of this project it will cause the damage that far outweighs the benefits and will affect everything and everyone for decades. |

It is time to move from the 1700, 1800 AND 1900'S view of Native Americans to today's laws and treatment of ALL Americans. ALL AMERICANS must be treated according to their cultural practices, legal standing and all previous minimization of their existence MUST be changed to EQUAL treatment under the laws and practices of these United States. | 407 | J | Kelly | 98359-8556 | I oppose Rye Development,Äôs proposed Goldendale Energy Storage Hydroelectric Development (Development) because of the detrimental, unavoidable impacts that it will have on tribal cultural-religious resources, as explicitly expressed by the Confederated Tribes and Bands of the Yakama Nation (Yakama Nation) since 2017. Alleged ‚úgreen energy,Äù cannot be built at the expense of Tribal Nations, who are already on the front lines of climate change and extractive industrialization and practices. |

| 410 | Laurie | Kerr | 98604-7387 | The EIS proposal needs to include alternatives, including alternate locations in the draft. The impacts to groundwater from the aluminum smelter and the subsequent clean up of the smelter also needs occur. Significant environmental justice issues are also apparent; the proposal fails to acknowledge these concerns and mitigate against these impacts. This would be a great loss to Indigenous people who have historic sites and artifacts located in or near the water. |

The corrupting influence of money in our political system is undermining our democratic traditions and discouraging Americans from voting and/or running for office. This ominous development may well end our experiment in representative democracy unless we alter this decades-long trend. For the sake of the republic, we must amend the US Constitution to state that corporations are not people (and do not have constitutional rights) and money is not speech (and thus can be regulated by state and/or federal campaign finance laws). Short of accomplishing this, no other reform of significance will be achieved. |

| 630 | Kathleen | Robson | 98674-9540 | Not only would this project destroy cultural resources, but building massive facilities and pumping a huge amount of water out of the Columbia does not sound like 'green energy' to me; it sounds more like water hoarding. The project has ignored laws and regulations protecting cultural and natural resources. It must not be allowed to go forward. PS Energy is far too centralized as it is - we need residential and commercial building codes that require solar panels on roofs, perhaps small wind turbines, and plumbing with a focus on water conservation. |

| 680 | Meghna | Shankar | 98052 | I support renewable energy, but if we move towards renewable energy, we cannot encroach upon the very little land indigenous people have left and destroy their cultural resources. The US government has subjugated indigenous people throughout its history, and this is only another step following the pattern of disregarding indigenous people's right to the land they occupied for millenia. Instead of continuing to add to the issue, we should take a step in the other direction and install renewable energy that does not adversely impact indigenous people's land. |

The ecological destruction of drowning a low-elevation location, and all its cultural value to native peoples of that location, remains unacceptable as for any dam that submerged sites claimed by the Yakima Nation. Moreover, we now know that reservoirs are a potent source of methane, an ultra-potent global warming pollutant, due to their creation of unnaturally steep, narrow lateral profiles that leave unoxygenated reservoir bottoms full of organic matter from the prior terrestrial ecosystem. |
