Putting a dam on the Chehalis River is not a good solution to flooding issues. In fact it would flood one area at the expense of other areas. It is also destructive to salmon and steelhead runs. Dams don't solve problems they cause them - this has been proven over and over. It's time to take a common sense approach and work with the native stewards of the land to find a natural and ecologically sound way to mitigate the damage that periodic flooding has. Please cancel this expensive, wasteful and destructive project.
