

THOMAS M HARGROVE

This dam is a damn bad idea. If flood control is a real objective you create a dam with the flood gates wide open and only close them when an actual flood stage is reached. That creates only temporary and local effects much like an actual flood and does not alter the local ecology permanently.