

Alex Goodell

The science is clear. In a world where dams are being removed at a record rate, it is entirely nonsensical and ignorant to build a new one - especially on a river that is so critically important to preventing ecosystem collapse. This is a step in the wrong direction.