

Cheryl Smith

I am deeply concerned about conclusions of the EIS...other measures should be put into place and tested before constructing a dam that will definitely cause harm to wildlife and will reduce food available to the southern resident killer whales, who are already starving and their babies are dying. This proposed course of action is reckless and unacceptable when many other options are available. The dam would completely disregard the findings from the EIS. This is poor public policy.