

Amy Brewster

I am writing to voice my opposition to the Chehalis River Dam proposal.

Aside from its massive price tag and the burden on Washington tax payers, the dam will irrevocably harm one of the last wild rivers in the region.

I support habitat for fish, beavers and other animals that rely on this river, especially in a time of global warming and rampant habitat destruction. I support the voices of Indigenous neighbors, for whom the Chehalis is spiritually and culturally significant.

We are in an age where we need creative, effective and nimble solutions that benefit our non human neighbors and indigenous neighbors, not another dam.
