

E Chapp

These impacts would be devastating to the environment with only moderate flood protection to the communities. Recent flooding has shown that dams are also prone to cracking and sudden failure. There are better ways to protect communities that also respect tribal sovereignty, and the environment.