

Shelly Jimenez

AL'S response when asking about the proposed Chehalis Dam makes this very clear to me and all of the other species that benefit from the salmon, just want you to say no! There are alternatives. Our obligations to our native tribes should be honored as well... search noted below:

The proposed Chehalis River dam (Flood Retention Flow Augmentation facility) is expected to significantly harm salmon and steelhead populations in the Chehalis River basin. Modeling predicts it will severely impact, potentially eliminating, spring- and fall-run Chinook, coho, and steelhead, particularly in the upper river, by obstructing migration and reducing habitat quality.