

Gail Richardson

For years, some people have tried to build a massive dam on Washington's Chehalis River. It would do little to solve local flooding, while creating a lot of harm for wild fish. The revision does not change this enough to make a difference.