

Madeline Vance

Absolutely no support for this whatsoever. Ecologically, a Dam will create ecological disaster for this river, and everyone living on it, and beyond. There is no good reason to build another mega dam. Salmon, forests, water quality, air quality, ocean health, everything gets sick from these dams, it has been proven, what more is there to say. Ecological sound flood control means restoring habitat and the natural landscape, not degrading it further. Case in point, what happened in Florida when they started building levees in the 1930's, yes, many, many people died, and land was destroyed, because trying to 'control' nature never works, it makes the problems worse and worse over time.