

Desiree Aponte

We don't need this in an era of dam removal. There are other ways to help with flooding that don't involve damming up the river, destroying habitats, and losing species. Despite what some may think, humans, not just other animals and plants, need nature to survive. We need to stop destroying it and do better.