

Judith Koch

I have read through all I can find on this project. It has been proven again and again that dams are not the answer. Once built the real effects come to play and generally cannot be undone resulting in disastrous consequences. Time and again natural is better. One thing that can help is preserving more "green" spaces and STOPPING over development in these areas.