

Jaymi Garvett

The proposed damn on the Chehalis river would have lots of negative environmental impacts, including increased water temperatures, decrease salmon runs, and profound negative impact on the southern resident killer whales. This isn't good for humans marine life on the environment. We need flood control methods that help the environment for all.