

Alex Agdeppa

The orcas are a substantial reason that Washington has noted tourism, and the impact of their loss would lead to substantial devastating impacts, to both the state as a whole, the environment and the draw to science that would motivate future generations.