

John Livingston

We do not need any more dams anywhere in this country. The existing ones are filling with sediment that will cost a fortune to remove and cause major fishery damage. Flood control must start with not building any structures in the flood plain. Neg you must incorporate the impacts of upstream logging and construction of impervious surfaces such as roads and buildings and other asphalt areas. Then new flood maps can be developed. Remove all structures in the existing floodplains.