

Kathryn Vinson

Rather than spending so much money building yet another dam, destined to be torn down, why not focus on proven solutions that will keep communities up and down the river safe, and help return the fish runs to their historical health? Continuing to use strategies that destroy the environment is not the smart way to go. Please reconsider.