Jon Kime

Will a three-foot berm be enough to prevent downtown flooding? Will you go on public record stating that this latest plan will prevent future flooding? Historically this happened several times before the dam was built.
It reads like a refined version of a bad idea. All of this is possible with enough money, but it seems to be an ill-defined benefit to the public or the environment.