As a water right permitting practitioner, I would love to see a link or reference to the requirement for some dams to have a reservoir permit in addition to dam safety approval - maybe that could go in Section 4 and simply clarify that in cases where a reservoir permit is needed whether have that precludes getting dam safety approval or not. My preference would be for the lack of a reservoir permit to not prevent or delay the dam safety approval process - and have the language be more advisory, but a lot of people seems to be able to go through this process without ever being advised that they also need another permit from Ecology.
