

Ed Walker

The states infrastructure is not prepared to handle mass charging of EV's Technology for Commercial EV's is still under developed. Forcing companies to add EV's to fleets now at an astronomical expense is not feasible.

Hybrid technology is more likely the route that should be pursued. When an electric semi cannot make it border to border in Wa without having to stop and charge for hours, where's the savings?

Let technology catch up, build the infrastructure first.