

Nicholas Backman

Something that is being overlooked is EV in electrically classified areas such as grain elevators.

All electric components in and around grain elevators must be electrically rated as explosion proof due to the high explosion hazard properties that grain dust has.