

Chris Ray

How completely out of touch does one have to be to see that every single policy coming out of WA is a burden on every single one of us who is not a top earner in this state?

Eliminating diesel trucks isn't going to solve one single thing. Why don't you go after the airline industry? The cargo ships? The government vehicles? Every single decision that is made ends up being yet another tax on the citizens of WA. Enough already.

Where do you think the power to run these trucks comes from? The state wants to remove dams and place more burden on the grid that already cannot keep up, and a small fraction of the population owns an EV. So that leaves you with natural gas and coal. You want to eliminate nat gas. Ha it's a virtue signaling pipe dream that will accomplish nothing except for increasing the costs on the citizens of this state. More people will leave and your tax base will shrink. You are trading one evil for another and spending unnecessarily to do so. Just stop already.

Focus on things like actually fixing the roads. At least people will feel like they are getting something for their money.