

Patricia Waterston

Working to clean up our air with stricter regulations will not only aid better health but is the key to alleviate the consequences of climate change.