

Larry Franks

Thank you, Washington State, for taking action on this critical issue.

Climate change is touching us all, and not in good ways. My best animal friends, salmonids, are already impacted by raising surface water temperatures on the high seas, to lower snowpack reducing river flows at a critical stage in their life cycle. Likewise climate change is impacting the forests that salmon have co-evolved with for millennia. Our family's personal transportation relies on a plug-in hybrid and public transportation - limiting vehicular emissions is important to my family and friends, whether animal or human.