

Felicity Devlin

Please continue our state's commitment to a healthy environment. We must lead the way, given that the Trump Administration is rolling back clean vehicle standards. These standards are not a luxury. They protect our health, economy, and environment. If we can no longer rely on the federal government to do what's necessary, then our state must respond with strong state-level incentives for EVs, accelerated clean car and truck commitments, and expanded charging infrastructure across the state.

These policies foreground long term thinking and will reduce costs (health, environmental, energy) in the long run. And the country needs the example of strong leadership.