

Rio Mowbray

Hello,

I am writing to ask how Washington leadership plans to address the long-term issue of electric vehicle battery disposal. Given that the average length of vehicle ownership is approximately seven years, a single individual may go through many vehicles over a lifetime, resulting in a significant number of batteries. Could you please share how these batteries will be managed and disposed of in a way that is both environmentally responsible and sustainable?

Thank you for your time and attention to this important matter.
