

Neil Munro

Electric cars are a luxury item. I appreciate people buying them who are able to. The people who can't afford that luxury should not be subsidizing them. The EV industry is stable enough that the government can let it run its course without interference.