

The Chehalis River Stewardship Project appreciates the opportunity to provide comments on the proposed Clean Fuel Standard amendments.

As a community-based nonprofit dedicated to protecting the Chehalis River watershed through stewardship, education, and volunteer service, we encourage the Department of Ecology to continue ensuring that Clean Fuel Standard investments benefit rural communities like Grays Harbor.

We support efforts that improve environmental quality while also creating opportunities for local organizations, local governments, and community volunteers to participate in projects that strengthen watershed health, reduce pollution, and improve community resilience.

Thank you for your continued commitment to protecting Washington's environment and for considering our comments as you move forward with this rulemaking.
