

park furlong

I already wrote but i thought about another aspect of all this that i think i need to comment upon.

there are not only people and communities and lifestyles all up and down the 197 miles of this great river, the only one left that is sort of free flowing east of the mississippi, but there are an amazing amount of businesses that are fully or partially dependent on this river remaining somewhat clean. there are billions of dollars involved in these industries and businesses....businesses such as recreation, boating, fishing, tubing, supplying of river related activities, places to eat, shop, stay for a night or a week, bird watching, eagle counting, pond studies for kids that hire staff....you think about it and somebody has created something that is riverbound. taking water, disposing poisoned water, storing contaminated water....all of this is the exact opposite of how we need to be treating this amazing place and ALL the land and people and businesses and plants and fish and mammals and the air, EVERYTHING, the lives and breathes river.

stop these selfish, greedy, evil people who run these selfish, greedy and becoming evil corporations NOW.
