

Matthew Tierney

As a lifelong resident of Gloucester County, New Jersey for my 60 years, I oppose dumping waste in my drinking water. When I was a child the Delaware river was just a sewer. Raw sewage and petrochemical waste made the river smell in an awful way. Over the years the river has been cleaned up, thanks to the EPA and the clean water act. Now my drinking water is a blend of municipal well water and Delaware River water. I strong object to having fracking waste dumped into the source of my water supply.