

Ron Steffe

To whom it may concern,

All too often, in the name of progress, our leaders often choose to destroy a perfected part of nature for the unforeseen profits and so-called benefits the destruction will bring. Ultimately, these profits soon disappear-if they ever materialize in the first place-and that which was sacrificed for the betterment of man, is lost forever for mankind.

Understand nature's perfection and rewards, push aside greed, and make certain that every effort possible is utilized to protect that which is perfect.

Ron Steffe

Outdoor writer