

Jon Rosenblatt

The risk of pollution of the water table with toxins resulting from the fracking process far outweighs the rewards ' There are sufficient supplies of fossil fuels on hand to render approval of fracking in this area unnecessary